

Agave macroacantha

JET TIP AGAVE / BLACK SPINED AGAVE

These are beautiful round, clustering Agaves with narrow, rigid powder-blue leaves that are well armed with sharp black teeth and a short formidable jet-black terminal spine. Their natural habitat is open scrubland of mixed desert shrubs, thorny small trees, and plenty of ephemeral wildflowers. This is why these plants are so well suited for virtually any residential or commercial landscape. They are perfectly at home in well-drained soils, with periodic irrigation, blended with almost any other native or drought adaptive plants. Low maintenance, small and dramatic.
