WHALE'S TONGUE AGAVE

Whale's Tongue is a big, bold Agave with bright powder blue leaves. They form wide, deeply guttered leaves that often exhibit some wavy, linear undulations which are quite unique and dramatic. These are highly desirable, solitary landscape plants that are durable, tolerant of many exposures with good cold tolerance. They grow slowly, but designers should take note that the modest sized plants they find in nursery containers will eventually reach fairly massive proportions, so give them the space they need. Provide good drainage, and supplemental summer water.
