

Aloe x 'Blue Elf'

BLUE ELF ALOE

This selection is one of the best all-around landscape Aloes. It is forgiving of tight spaces and unimproved soils, if it has good drainage and some supplemental water during hot summer months. They have short, narrow blue-green spiny leaves with the entire plant maintaining and vertical growth habit for a groundcover type Aloe. They flower for a prolonged period, typically starting in late winter blooming well into spring. Bloom stalks rise about 1 foot above the foliage and hold bright orange flowers that hummingbirds can't resist. They are well-behaved, spread slowly by suckering as other aloes do, but they never become invasive. They will tolerate deeper shade but bloom less and more of a green color.
