

Lavendula pinnata

FERNLEAF LAVENDER

Sweet herbal scented leaves & purple blooms. Small, rounded evergreen herbaceous to woody perennial shrubs typically grow 2 ft. x 2 ft. Well-drained soils and some moderate summer irrigation, but limited moisture during winter like most Mediterranean plants. Ferny, dissected short gray pubescent leaves have a sweet herbal fragrance, especially when crushed to release their oils. Likewise, the lavender flowers that rise well above the foliage are also sweetly fragrant. The stems are square. Deadheading spent flower stems is only regular required maintenance. Avoid planting too deep as they are susceptible to crown rot. Chelated iron or complete fertilizers can help prevent chlorosis symptoms. Use in containers on patios or poolside, for entryways where their fragrance can be appreciated, mixed in perennial beds or kitchen herb gardens.
