

Phoenix roebelenii

PYGMY DATE PALM

Small, multi-trunked feather palm. These small, moderate to fast growing evergreen date palms are a delight around pools, patios, courtyards, and entryways where a tropical, easy-to-maintain accent tree is needed. They prefer well-drained soils with regular, consistent soil moisture. In spring fertilizer with a complete food that includes magnesium to help keep foliage looking green and healthy. Removing older, lower yellow to dried leaves is the main maintenance requirement for these palms. They are happiest planted in part to full shade either in-ground or in large containers in low deserts. They do not mind being somewhat root-bound, but eventually they will need to be up-potted for continued top growth.
