PLANT DETAILS

Ruellia peninsularis

DESERT RUELLIA, BAJA RUELLIA

Durable naturally rounded desert evergreen shrubs. Light green, oval leaves against light gray to white stems highlight the native, heat tolerant nature of this tough landscape plant. They form short trumpet-shaped purple flowers mostly in spring, but they can flower during the entire growing season. They have low water needs, but regular consistent water keeps the foliage looking lusher. Even though they can tolerate shade they tend to grow more open and leggier with fewer flowers. They are considered clean enough for pool or patio plantings, and they make good solitary specimens as well as informal hedges. Their durability and adaptability make them a great choice for clients who need tough low desert plants that require little to no maintenance, whether that is for a residential or commercial project.
