PLANT DETAILS

Ulmus parvifolia

EVERGREEN ELM, CHINESE ELM

Sturdy, predictable shade tree. Evergreen is a bit of a misnomer for these shade trees, since they are really semi-evergreen to deciduous. They are moderate to fast growers with ample water. They have an upright, naturally dense umbrella shaped canopy with strong, flexible wood. Leaves are oval, shiny green with slight serration and their distinctive exfoliating bark is highly ornamental with rough tan and gray appearance. Excellent shade trees for use in residential or commercial landscapes, where they can be planted without overhead interference. They produce inconspicuously small green flowers in late spring that set into small papery seed pods that then drop in fall and winter.
