

Lantana Confetti

CONFETTI LANTANA

A colorful explosion of pink, yellow, and magenta round blooms against dark green foliage will make you smile. ‘Confetti’ is a well-behaved, adaptable multi-colored Lantana selection. Lantanas are subtropical native, woody perennial flowering plants. Most modern garden selections are self-sterile which means more blooming and not dropping or reseeding fruits. Plants have compact growth with oval to round, rough dark green leaves and slightly prickly stems. After flowering plants can be lightly pruned or sheared for size control, but choosing the right sized cultivar for the space is important to help reduce how frequently the Lantanas need to be trimmed. Cutting them back too frequently can eliminate flower displays. Regular, supplemental water during the hottest months keeps them healthy and happy.
